A Biographical Sketch

Joshua Poluma Mohapeloa, K.C.R., O.B.E. is well-known as a creative African composer. His work is deeply inspired by the rich tradition of Southern Sotho folk music; his formal training in Western music has not divorced him from the traditional. Based on the Southern Sotho tradition, his work includes a variety of songs of different styles and content. The key-note is his unerring sensitivity to the sights and sounds of Lesotho and his unfailing love for its people, a musical talent totally dedicated to the happiness and well-being of the mountain-nation that is Basotho.

I have been fortunate to have the privilege of working very closely with him for more than three years, in connection with the Development Studies programme in composing songs on the theme of national unity, patriotism and development, and his dedication to the cause of his country has impressed me greatly.

His dynamic approach in experimenting with new styles in composition and his meticulous care in writing and re-writing each composition in his striving for perfection deserve special mention; particularly when one considers his poor eye-sight and the absence of adequate lighting and such essential facilities as a piano. With only a tuning fork, some lined and gummed paper and a felt pen, it is astonishing how he goes on visualising the whole range of tunes and their combinations based on the speech-tone and the Southern Sotho tradition in music.

He has imbibed, so to say, the tradition of the beautiful musical village of Molumong (the place that echoes) in the heart of the mountains of Mokhotlong in Lesotho where he was born on Sunday morning 28 March 1908, when he was welcomed amidst the prayer songs.

At home, music was an inseparable part of his family. In his early childhood, he came into contact with several choir masters and local composers. After completing Std V at the village school, he joined the Morija Training Institute (at present Thabeng High School). Before he had completed the Junior Certificate course there in 1927, Mr. Mohapeloa had had a very good groundwork in vocal and piano training. Thereafter he went to Fort Hare but became ill in 1929 and could unfortunately not complete his schooling.

While at home, resting and recuperating, his main hobby was to write music. Soon his work came to be appreciated and this brought a bumper crop of new compositions in Sesotho. The then Director of Education, Mr. O. B. Bull, organised a scholarship for Mr. Mohapeloa to study music at the University of the Witwatersrand (1938-42). His special fields were History of Music, Harmony and Counterpoint.

Music by this time became not just a hobby – it turned into a life force for Mr. Mohapeloa.

He chose to be a proof-reader in the Morija Printing Works. This led to publication of his work by the Morija Printing Works and to an increasing fame in the world of music.

In recognition for his talent, the British Government awarded Mr. J. P. Mohapeloa the O.B.E. (Officer of the Most Distinguished Order of the British Empire) in 1964. Ten years later, the Government of Lesotho conferred on him the title of K.C.R. (Order of Ramats'eatsane, Knight Commander) for his distinguished service to the nation mainly through music.

Apart from musical appeal, the poems are also greatly inspiring and are judged to be of high literary value. They are worth reciting and studying as such.

Before I conclude this short biographical note, I would like to pray for a long and active life for Mr. Mohapeloa and hope that he will continue to be a living source of inspiration for the younger African composers for many years to come.

'Mohapeloa's music for 4-part choir serves the 3-fold function of narrator, orchestra (music without words) and choir; it portrays and intensifies . . . symbolism.'

Joshua Polumo Mohapeloa, K.C.R., O.B.E. is well-known all over the world as a creative African composer. He is deeply inspired by the rich tradition of the Southern Sotho folk music. His formal training in Western music has enriched this inspiration.

The keynote to his success is his unerring sensitivity to the sights and sounds of Lesotho and his unfailing love for the people.

Meluluetsa, which means ululation, is calculated to inspire the Basotho, particularly the young generation, in the same way as actual ululating inspires warriors to acts of valour. It is an attempt to instil the spirit of patriotism into their minds and urge them to active participation in all spheres of development for the betterment of the country.

His published works of music so far are Khalima-Nosi, and Meloli le Lithallere tsa Africa in three volumes. Of his many popular songs, the following deserve special mention:

Senqu (The Orange River) composed in 1945

Linoto (The Modern Anvil) composed in 1942

Thoko ea tlhoho (Song of Victory) composed in 1945

Lehlabula (Summer) composed in 1936

Moshoeshoe Tsoha (Moshoeshoe Arise) composed in 1966 with some additions made in 1976

The present collection includes 20 unpublished songs. The more recent ones, composed since 1974, are examples of more mature integration of the traditional folk music with the Western style. For example, Song no. 7, E, Molimo, etc., follows an unconventional pattern of rhythm from the point of view of the Western music.
